

About us

The MEDIAPRO group is a leading provider of technical services to the audio-visual industry. It's present in the following sectors: production of audio-visual content for film and television, interactive content, and the management of sporting event rights and distribution; and it provides post-production services. Technical engineering, broadcasting services, consultancy services –marketing, communication and the sale of advertising–, and designing and producing themed channels and exhibition and museum spaces, are also amongst the group's basic activities. MEDIAPRO's human and technical resources make it a European leader in audio-visual innovation.
